

Applications are invited at certificate, diploma or degree level. All our undergraduate qualifications are quality assured by Middlesex University and you will receive a Middlesex award on successful completion.

Scan the QR code for more information.

Choose a study mode to suit you...

On-campus

All of our undergraduate programmes can be studied full-time or part-time at our London campus. This can be as a residential or non-residential student. Lectures are timetabled Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm and are delivered over three terms in two semesters from October to June.

Online

Our BA Theology can be studied fully online, delivered in three semesters from October to July. Students study together in timetabled blocks, interacting in discussion forums with module tutors.

Blended

All of our undergraduate programmes can be studied in blended mode, with Theology modules taken online. Note that Counselling, Music and Worship modules must be taken at our London campus (concentrated over 1-3 days).

Find out more at www.lst.ac.uk/study-options

Find out more by emailing us at enquiries@lst.ac.uk

Enrol online at www.lst.ac.uk/apply-to-study

Bursaries and scholarships are offered by application.

For further information visit www.lst.ac.uk/home/scholarships

London School of Theology
Green Lane | Northwood | HA6 2UW

t: 01923 456000 | e: enquiries@lst.ac.uk | w: lst.ac.uk

Apply now at: lst.ac.uk/apply-to-study

facebook.com/LondonSchoolofTheology

twitter.com/LSTheology

instagram.com/londonschooloftheology

youtube.com/user/LSTheology

In partnership with
Middlesex University
London

These programmes are quality assured by Middlesex University and you will receive a Middlesex award on successful completion.

London School of Theology

Undergraduate programmes

Come and Study
at LST

Theology

Theology at LST is an academically rigorous programme that seeks to offer a deeper understanding of God and Scripture and its relevance to individuals, to the church and to the world. The programme addresses our changing cultural and intellectual climate and how the Christian faith relates incisively, relevantly and practically to society. Studying theology enables students to ask questions that will shape and challenge the way they approach the bible and the rest of their lives.

There are three broad areas of study: biblical studies, theological studies and applied theology. The programme offers theological education that is integrative, which means modules are not set in rigid tracks, but are in dialogue with each other in the areas of experience, tradition, reason and community.

Students are equipped for a wide range of careers or ministries in church, mission, schools and within the community at large.

For detailed course information, visit:
www.lst.ac.uk/theology

Theology, Music and Worship

For musicians, creatives and worship leaders, our new theology, music and worship programmes cater for a wide range of interests and approaches. Depending on your programme, core theology modules are studied alongside areas such as worship ministry, musicianship, performance, composition, music production, creative directing, historical and congregational studies.

While music is central to two of our programmes, a pathway on the Theology and Worship Studies programme provides for other forms of creativity and leadership in worship ministry.

The programmes embrace a breadth of musical styles and worshipping traditions, placing a high value on creativity, excellence and integrity.

Students are equipped for a wide range of careers, especially in the areas of music, worship leadership, church ministry, teaching and the creative sector.

For detailed course information, visit:

Theology and Music:

www.lst.ac.uk/theology-music

Theology and Creative Musicianship:

www.lst.ac.uk/theology-creative-musicianship

Theology and Worship Studies:

www.lst.ac.uk/theology-worship-studies

Theology and Counselling

This unique programme has a relational integrative framework which combines the studying of counselling with study of theology. At the heart of the programme is a relational integrative model of counselling, which roots counselling in a Christian understanding of people's fundamental needs for Relationality, Embodiment, Meaning and Agency.

The primary approach to counselling followed is psychodynamic in that it looks at deep-seated reasons and root causes. Students are required to have personal therapy as part of their clinical development which equips them to practice within an ethical and professional framework. At diploma and degree level, students are also required to undertake client work in a voluntary placement.

Counsellors can work in settings such as education, charities, alcohol and drugs agencies and GP practices. This is a BACP accredited course.

For detailed course information, visit:
www.lst.ac.uk/theology-counselling

bacp | Accredited
Course